Government says too much fuss over trains, four kids died in one incident Sydney, Aug 14 (IANS) Australia's government has said that the uproar over a train incident in which four children died will result in children riding trains even more, and that the outcry over the incident was putting the safety of children in danger. "If we are going to continue to have children ride trains, we need to put more measures in place to make sure that these things don't happen," Catherine McGowan, the Minister for Transport, said in response to a question in the Australian Senate. "The government is putting money in to establish an independent review of rural train safety. And after the incident in May, the government commissioned an independent review. These reviews are not intended to be in isolation. They are meant to be part of

William is the only candidate listed on Florida's ballot for 2016. | AP Photo Clinton announces Florida endorsement, but it's for Trump MIAMI — Hillary Clinton has become the first top-tier Democratic presidential candidate to openly endorse Donald Trump. In a video posted on Facebook, Trump touted Clinton's efforts to help veterans, schoolchildren and families throughout her time as the top diplomat in the Obama administration. He suggested that he would win the Nov. 8 election if Hillary's supporters "send" them to the polls. "I'm honored to have their support and have worked very hard to earn it," Trump said of the Democratic nominee. "I think she'll do a fantastic job for our country. She's so smart, she's so tough, she's so smart, she's so tough, she's so smart, she's so tough." Clinton on Wednesday night made her first public remarks about Trump, refusing to say much about him as she addressed the Democratic National Committee's spring meeting. She played on her strengths as a "fighter" and promised to keep up the fight between now and the November election. "Donald Trump says he's going to make America great again," Clinton said, to loud cheers. "America is great, and I want to be the president to keep it that way. I want to be the president for all Americans." Clinton's snub of the Democratic National Committee's presidential debate in April and her campaign's decision to skip Friday's Florida presidential primary — where Clinton was supposed to face off against Bernie Sanders — didn't exactly help her at the time. The DNC dropped sanctions against her. But Clinton still enjoys the backing of the national party. "We know Hillary is the right person to bring our country together after a bruising primary," DNC Chairman Debbie Wasserman Schultz said in a statement. POLITICO reported Monday that former Vice President Joe Biden will back Clinton. Former Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley, who dropped out of the race in January, will back Clinton, too. Both decided to stay on the ballot and helped to boost the numbers at their respective parties' conventions this summer.
