There are almost half a million video tutorials on Youtube, and many of them are dedicated to the art of emotional recognition. In fact, different studies have concluded that emotional recognition is the next big thing in the field of artificial intelligence. This is why Emotional Recognition is a very useful application that allows you to study the effects of emotions on people's faces. To do this, Emotional Recognition shows you a photo or video clip, and you can set the emotion you want to be evaluated. After that, the program will analyse the clip and it will automatically classify the person's emotions and show you all the details. You can configure this application to show you photos only in black and white, with or without shadows. This allows you to quickly analyse your data. The results of your analysis can be saved to a.xlsx file. Furthermore, Emotional Recognition is able to recognise more than 100 different emotions, including anger, sadness, fear, love, surprise, joy, disgust, trust and sadness. Other features include the ability to show only the faces in a photo or video clip and the possibility to save your classification results to.csv format. In addition, the application can show you the video or photo in a more creative way. Moreover, Emotional Recognition is able to show you the number of people in a photo or video clip and the percentage of times that the person shows the same emotion. Face and Emotions Emotional Recognition is a very handy and simple application that allows you to get a quick snapshot of a photo or a

AppBrain AppBrain is the largest service for App Research & Reviews. Find the latest and greatest apps for iPhone, iPad and Mac by The media appears to have gone into hyper-drive with the story of the criminal and lying attorney Michael Avenatti. Avenatti is that dude that was arrested for domestic violence and has been arrested for threatening to kill another man. Avenatti then released a list of people he'd like to kill and tried to cash in on that by making money off these people's names. And now, he wants to take on a Republican Senator for her anti-Trump comments. And that Senator, according to Avenatti is "lying about him" and Avenatti is the ultimate truth-teller. Well, I guess if we can trust the guy who has threatened to kill people, then we can certainly trust him when he says something as truthful and important as "I never worked for the Russians" when in reality, he was working for the Russians. Who's lying now? But Avenatti's not lying in this case because he's now taking on a Republican Senate candidate and it's Avenatti saying she's lying. But he also said this about her: "I think what she's trying to do here is distract from her corruption," Avenatti said. "It is clear what she's trying to do and I think it's clear what [the] Republican Party is trying to do." So, the media won't back down from this story either because it's important for them to beat Donald Trump at all costs. And Avenatti is a great reason to do that. Avenatti is the perfect man to run for the presidency of the United States. He's a celebrity and will be a media darling for being a no-shit, no-nonsense, sometimes blunt, sometimes downright offensive, but never lacking in truth telling, guy who will be a walking, talking, front page, 24/7 news item. He is the media's dream
