Everything is about falling in love. Gently then, and without warning. Then, nothing is the same again. You, the player, can choose to be the architect of your own story, using your touch, sight and sound to bring the world to life in an absurd, intimate and intensely tactile way. In Everything, you are the sole inhabitant of a crystalline world. You are part of an idyllic beach community with distinctive personalities, each with their own choices to make. When one of your neighbors suddenly dies, you begin to realize you have no choice but to become the architect of his life - an endless cycle of joy, love and sorrow. Everything is about what you can do with what is given to you. With every choice, you choose your own fate and your own fate is chosen for you. About The Developer NEW YORK - January 23rd, 2016 - Playdigious and Gameloft today announced the upcoming release of Everything on the App Store. Set in a dreamlike world of gemstones and beaches, Everything's immersive and interactive gameplay mechanics, sense of humor and deep narrative weave together to create a uniquely engrossing experience for iPhone and iPad. Everything's unique sense of style and tone was born from the minds of David Jaffe (writer) and Marcus Persson (artist) who previously created the surreal, interactive dark comedy found in Jitterbug and The Walk. The duo teamed up to create a beautifully poetic and cinematic game which blends humor and pathos in order to tell a fascinating story. Everything tells the story of David, a man who has learned to be okay with his "oddities", but when the end of his world meets the beginning of his life, there are no more guarantees. With just the tiniest touch, he can move a palm-sized structure out of the way of his neighbor's house or help out an old woman whose door was left unlocked. Can he help her find her home? Can he help his neighbor find the life he was hoping for? And will he? An audio platformer with no combat. Everything is all about the most intimate of connections, as you come to grips with the choices you can make and the life you can create. KEY FEATURES - High Definition, hand-drawn graphics that can be easily explored at any level of detail - Tastefully dark but also touching at times - New concept: 'The second you touch an object, it can die.💎 d41b202975

A must-have.When you think of Star Wars, the names you think of are Luke, Yoda, and a younger Jedi named Anakin Skywalker. You know all the storylines, and your own. But there is a lot more to the universe. Something much older. Something much more profound. And this is your story. WiredAn exuberant celebration of connections, of the ties that bind the universe together. I burst into tears. " My dearest friends, the old republic has been destroyed. The Republic, the Republic. In its place, there is now a Sith Empire. The galaxy will be plunged into war." This is the opening line of Knights of the Old Republic. Its opening message to you, the player, as well as the voice of Darth Malak, the Supreme Leader of the Sith Empire. The old Republic, the great political entity of the Star Wars universe, is gone. #### What's new in Everything:

in, nothing out One of the more problematic issues I have dealt with over the last 4 years, and one that I am sure is very common with other people in the same situation I was in is that of the perfect marriage, he turns to me now. For the last 4 years, I have been single. I gave up the idea of looking for a long term relationship or marriage about 13 years ago. I am totally OK with this. I am comfortable with how my life is and I am happy with it. I feel its time to move on. I am single, but there is the constant possibility if the right person were to come along. However, I don't feel like my life is incomplete without a man in it. I genuinely don't think the two can coexist, the reality of it is that either you are together and talking, or you are no longer talking. You are either in a relationship with another person, or not. Now here is the big issue for me. Up until the past 3 to 4 years, at times of stress and uncertainty, I have used him to take the pressure off. From the way I see it, we both started out as no strings attached. The terms were:"Everything in, nothing out" "I'll take care of everything and he takes care of me" or "I'll take care of everything and he does not/cannot take care of me" This approach worked for a couple of reasons. Up until about 2 years ago, I was single and I knew he was waiting for me. Up until about a year ago, I was married and I knew I was married to him. Knowing I was married, left me feeling safe and secure in some ways, knowing at least he was there if the need should come up However, the last 3 to 4 years have changed everything. He was no longer married, but his wife and child were still in town with him. So for the last 2 years, I have been enveloped in an environment where I could not sustain me, somewhat, throughout the year. During this period, he has been constantly saying:"Socrates, I can see it in your eyes, you are stressed and I am not fixing it. I am not taking this stress away from you. Take it from me. I am not ready for a relationship, or a marriage, or even for you and I to have contact because I really can't take this burden right now and
