What is it? HyperMotion Technology is a series of unique game-play features that is the culmination of EA SPORTS' extensive research and development. It brings next generation visuals and animations to FIFA, allowing the player to control the ball like never before. Dynamic Player Control and Real Player Agility help the game flow more naturally and the full Impact Engine allows for game-changing speed and acceleration, allowing the players to manoeuvre the ball more fluidly. HyperMotion is also designed to make the player feel more connected to the game and the player-controlled moments as the player's movements can be replicated. How will I use it? It allows you to play with the ball in the air by using real player agility, delivering the ball more naturally. Moving through the air is now faster and more varied. In addition, the player can move into tight areas more quickly, help the player gain more control of the ball by leveraging the power and control of the Impact Engine. Impact Engine The Impact Engine delivers game-changing, player-controlled speed and acceleration. EA SPORTS has adapted a number of elements from professional football that help create greater speed and agility, allowing for more dynamic, unpredictable and realistic gameplay. Players now tackle and receive passes more explosively and spring into a sprint just as quickly as they control the ball. Real Player Agility Real Player Agility is inspired by the speed, agility and speed of real-world football. Players can receive and control the ball with their feet, dodging and ducking as they make sharper turns than ever before. Players can also see opponents on the pitch far more clearly, including their positioning and movements. Dynamic Player Control Dynamic Player Control allows the player to control the ball with either foot as they move through the air, making it easier to attack and pass. Players can make sharper turns as they move in the air. This gives the player a sense of greater control and enhances the player's connection with the ball. FIFA Insider shows you the level of control using the AI's Zonal Support System to guide the ball in the air. By striking the ball at different angles, the player can control its trajectory. By carefully placing the ball in the right areas, you can move the player's progression along with the ball, and use the Defender AI to take it all the way through to the goalkeeper.
