"In my experience, unless the title promises a soundtrack on par with the gameplay itself, I always opt out of it. However, "Shunga Frame" doesn't disappoint. It is a piece of art all by itself. Given a game's reputation and its $7.99 price tag, I wouldn't expect it to earn that honor." Game Pundit "the game delivers as advertised, with beautiful art and a thoughtful design. This game is well worth checking out." MyToyShop About The Game Shrine of the Sixteenth Doll: "I was impressed by the graphics, the girls, the gameplay, and the FMV. Everything about this game I really enjoyed. But the story and plot fell short. It seemed too rushed, too short, too simple, and too predictable. There were a lot of cliches in the story and script." GameplayFactor About The Game Shinjuku: "Shinjuku: A Memory Retelling is an EXCELLENT game that showcases the beauty of visual novels. The story and emotional content is fabulous. The characters were memorable, and the gameplay was neat and fresh. The Japanese dialogue and short comic book style gave the story a bit of a very Japanese feel to it. The NPCs were interestingly written as well. The music, sound, and artwork were all great as well. A great addition to the visual novel genre, and one that definitely deserves attention." What I Thought Of Shinjuku: "Shinjuku: A Memory Retelling was one of the most enjoyable visual novels I played this past summer. The story was simple, yet very interesting, and the art direction was just as visually striking as I'd hoped." Ntgames About The Game Shinjuku: "If you are a fan of visual novels, and in the mood for a change from the harem genre, I highly recommend you pick up Shinjuku. I don't believe there is a better VN of this style to be released for the year." "Shinjuku: A Memory Retelling is a more emotional take on the visual novel (or rather, story-driven strategy RPG) genre, and is easily one of the best games I've played in 2010." "Shinjuku: A Memory Retelling is one of the best Visual Novels

What's new:

Laysara: Summit Kingdom is the third studio album by Australian electronic music production duo Midnight Star. It was released on 29 August 2006 in Australia and 4 February 2007 in the United Kingdom, followed by a US release in January 2007. The album is named after the Laysa (plural Laysa) family, and therefore features vocals by the family member who goes by the same name. The album was created throughout 2003 by Midnight Star's Rob Swire and Jonathon Morrell. It was followed in 2004 by the singles "Love, Touch Me, Kill Me" and "Shadows in the Dusk", reaching number 12 and number 9 on the ARIA Singles Chart, respectively. Laysara: Summit Kingdom was produced by Midnite Star. Three tracks were mixed by Joshua Henson, while two were mixed by long-time friend Simon Franglen. The album tracks have been compared by critics to shoegaze and trip hop music. Its production, reminiscent of 1960s psychedelic music, has been described as experimental, with Swire and Morrell's deliberate use of tape manipulation as an element. Two of its tracks, "Like a Glowing Mist" and "Shadows in the Dusk", were described as artistic and guitar-driven. Background and development Midnight Star consisted of Rob Swire and Jonathon Morrell. Swire was born in New South Wales and grew up in Townsville; Morrell was born in Brisbane and is a graduate of the Northern Beaches Secondary College. The pair began writing music at university. Swire pursued sound engineering before creating Midnight Star. He released the Carrom EP in 2002, followed by Take Me Away in 2003. This was followed by the duo's first full-length album, My, Back, then released in 2004. Swire decided to quit his job at an advertising company and began working on solo material. He found the music he was making was no longer creating interest, and decided to accompany it with electronic instruments. After a stint in Hawaii, he returned to Australia and started Midnight Star with Morrell. The duo's second album, Beauty is Embarrassing, was released on 1 August 2006 in Australia, with tracks released as singles "Shadows in the Dusk", "Love, Touch Me, Kill Me", and "I Am the Sun". "Shadows in the Dusk" was written about Swire's short-lived relationship with Francesca Bee, who was featured on the track. Swire
