Designers are faced with a number of challenges when designing for the newer technologies (e.g., the newer low power designs), including preserving timing without allowing timing violations to occur in the low power design. Timing is a very complex problem, especially when minimizing timing constraints during a timing analysis process. While timing analysis is a relatively easy problem for existing design tools, such tools generally cannot be used to perform a timing analysis for design tools running on low power technologies such as SoC (system-on-a-chip) technology. Specifically, current tools do not support the type of analysis that is needed for SoC technologies. That is, the current tools cannot perform a timing analysis that minimizes the timing constraints and ensures accurate timing analysis. The current tools generate a large number of timing violations in the design, which leads to difficult debugging and analysis of the design. In the prior art, engineers typically address timing issues by simply performing a number of guess-and-check trials. For example, the engineer guesses a delay of a gate in the design and calculates and simulates the resulting timing violation. The engineer repeats this process for each gate in the design. This process is time consuming and leads to inaccurate results due to the guess-and-check trial process. It would be advantageous to have a method and a system for performing a timing analysis for a design, which reduces or eliminates timing violations in the design.In a statement it said the prime minister had called on all political leaders to play their part in ensuring that relations between the two countries were mutually beneficial and productive. Johnson said Mr Johnson had reiterated the British government's willingness to consider visa-free travel, and had made clear that Britain wanted to do so once the restrictions on movement between the UK and the Republic of Ireland had been lifted, and once it was confident the Common Travel Area between Britain and Ireland would be reformed. Mrs May has always opposed trade with China The government has always opposed trade with China as it believes the country is unfairly subsidising its own manufacturers. The government says this has led to multiple problems including loss of manufacturing jobs in the UK and low-cost Chinese imports to the UK. Mrs May has also called on the EU to follow the example of

Is there any way to set a custom icon of a window using MFC? I know how to set it in resource file, but i want to do it by program itself. I searched through the documentation but didn't find anything. A: You will have to set a resource for it, just create a new resource file with the same name as the window class and drop an icon in the same directory that you placed the resource file. For example, if you are making a dialog, create a dialog_resource.rc file in the same directory as the executable. In the dialog_resource.rc file, add the following: `IDI_ICON1 ICON DISCARDABLE "icons/example.ico"` This will tell the program that it is looking in the directory specified for resources. Then you can either use the `LoadIcon()` API function to load the icon, or add a `load_icon_from_file()` to the dialog creation event.

1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a semiconductor memory device and, more particularly, to a semiconductor memory device capable of storing a greater amount of data at a higher speed than heretofore.

2. Description of the Prior Art The semiconductor memory device is classified into a volatile semiconductor memory device and a non-volatile semiconductor memory device. The volatile semiconductor memory device, such as a
